CLINICAL SYNOPSIS

This patient is aged 65 years and is noninsulin dependent diabetic. He presented with a 2 day history of a productive cough, fever, chills, gradually worsening shortness of breath, chest pain and a temperature of 39.0 degrees C. He was assessed by the ED and admitted to hospital. A chest x-ray revealed left lower lobe pneumonia and exacerbation of COPD. He was treated with IV ceftriaxone 2g daily for three days. This patient was discharged 3 days later, much improved and referred back to his GP for follow up.
